Her Claim:

She “secured funding for our schools and classrooms”, and she “voted to raise the Base Student Allocation.”

Accuracy:

These statements are examples of empty facts meant to lead to a false impression. The cost of education is impacted by inflation, so to keep our schools intact the education budget has to increase annually. Cathy Giessel’s caucus voted for a modest increase in education spending, far less than what was needed to keep school budgets intact, and that meant school districts were left to cut teaching positions. Personally, Cathy Giessel showed little interest in education issues and took no action to “secure” education funding other than join the rest of her caucus in voting for the final education bill and budget.
